DID YOU KNOW?

The sugarcane plant is fast growing and a highly renewable resource. It reaches maturity in just nine months, growing to about three metres tall. Based on production volumes, it's one of the largest crops in the world. For every 10 tonnes of sugarcane processed, three tonnes of a fibrous leftover product, called bagasse, remains, in quantities of about 610 million tonnes per year. It is put to good use as bagasse sugarcane pulp and transformed into packaging products and diverted away from landfill.

DID YOU KNOW?

Carnauba Wax, used to coat the cutlery in our wooden cutlery pack, is derived from the leaves of the 'Copernicia prunifera', a tree native to the Brazilian regions of Piauí, Ceará, Maranhão, Bahia, and Rio Grande do Norte. The use of this wax creates a smooth, premium surface and means the cutlery can be commercially composted.
